

PARTIAL LIST OF THE MOSSES OF SVALBARD

Bog Groove moss
Bog Star moss
Brown Claw moss
Claw braided moss
Claw moss
Flat mosses
Fringed moss
Grassy Sickle moss
Heath Grey moss
Mountain Groove moss
Nodding mosses
Pale Claw moss
Stepped moss
Tarn mosses

As though rubbed or scraped off. As if broken off. Intact.
Thorn-entangled. Jointed on, added-on. Adapted. Grown together, naturally grafting. Holding on, lying against another body.

Rough. Resembling balm. Branchless, twigless.
Alphabet-plant. Rough-woolly. With rough ears.

With ray-like clusters. Fruit like the spokes of a wheel.
Ray-like formation, ray-like leaves. With sharp edges, with thorns, prickly, somewhat sharp, related, grown together, adhering, attached, attaching. Hanging on.

Admirable, uncommon, beautiful. Pressed against, pressed on, besprinkled, bespattered, drawn together, unreal, not genuine. Grown up.

With a burnt appearance. By chance, accidental, turning to one side, strange. Having leaves opposite to one another.
Having thorns opposite to each other. With sea-green leaves. Wonderful. Pertaining to bog. Wavering.

Similar, related, of near alliance. Flowerless. Heaped up, pressed together. Cold-loving. Attached, adhering.
With strange, uncommon, peculiar leaves. Surrounded, twisted round, entangled.

Alternating, by turns one after the other. Alternately changing sides. Lovely. Slightly bitter. Bitter. Doubtful, uncertain. Clothed, covered. Interchanging. Living both on land and in water equally well. With woolly surroundings.
Doubtful. Embracing. Reviving, coming to life again.
Of hermit habits, isolated. Shield.

With male and female flowers on the same plant. With irregular, unequal leaves. Lasting a year, within a year.
Deviating from the rule. Preceding. Before. Stubborn, contrary. Deflecting from each other. Ringed, curled.
Exposed, naked. Unnoticeable, invisible. Growing in the dark, as a truffle. Lying flat, covered with leaves. Drawn close together but not united. Like a tree, concise, arched.

bent like a bow. Rootless, wanting true roots.

Articulated, jointed. Rough, very rough, somewhat rough.

Related, similar.

Weak, star-like, astringent, without style, of old type.

Finely covered. Flying. Neat and beautiful. Plants which bloom in the second year. Divided in two, having two leaflets, double foliated, different on each side. Cut in two, or nearly so. Of arms-length. Found. Moss-loving.

Bare, naked. Chaste, pure. Pertaining to deer. Resembling antlers. Like snow flakes. Enveloped, green-staining.

Curled, curled like a snail, curled like the young frond of a fern. Bearing hidden, invisible flowers. Contemporary, being of the same age. Related, well known, adherent.

Smudges. Mixed, intermingled. Changed, altered.

Confused, changed, entangled. Bending together, towards each other. Remaining unaltered. Easy to be seen, conspicuous, remarkable. Steadfast, constant, always present. Continuous, uninterrupted. Folded into each other. Rain-loving. Curled closely. Bearing concealed fruit. Deformed. Entangled, intricate. Deceptive, misleading, precise. Delicious. Forlorn, laid bare, definite, determined, holding back, support-less, turned away

Difficult. Of unusual formation. Divided, absorbed. Dark green. Separated. Disjointed, disconnected, scattered in all directions. Unlike, dissimilar, widely spreading apart

Extremely finely divided. Plain-shaped, mournful, deceptive, domestic, dormant, sleeping. Double.
Prickly like a hedgehog. Lofty.

Elliptical, improved, apparently nerveless. Lasting one day only, flowering early, dark green, unrolling, insignificant. Disappearing, soon vanishing, lasting only a short time. Unrolling, out of centre, emptying, running out.
Insignificant. Strange, foreign. Not essential, outermost.

In exile, without a claw. Empty, happy, loathsome.
Pertaining to the cat. Incandescent, quick.

Limited, confined, drawn together. With locks of soft hair.
Flowering profusely. Bearing small flowers.

Clothed with leaflets, tinder-like, extra-beautiful.
Depressed, fragile, misleading, deceptive. Bumble-bee like, fading early, fleeting, smoky.

With bent knees. Bent like a knee. Resembling a hinge.
Glorious. Agreeable, moving in a circle, as if inscribed.

Half, half covered in bark, half turned over or backward.
Towards evening, western, being of unusual form.

Bearing leaves of more than one kind, on different planes,
with various arrangements.

Hibernating, emblematic, turning in the same direction, growing together in woods. Of this year, strange, between two species, sharing both characteristics.

Forest-loving, below the snow line, sombre.

Spurious, unreal, without margin, unfinished, shameless, unsymmetrical. Uncertain, slanting inwards, incomparable, variable. Dormant, sleeping, uncultivated, unadorned, intoxicating, unarmed. Situated below, growing below, being below, injurious, insecure, buried. Broken, thankless, nameless, disordered, causing insanity.

Connected, superimposed, remarkable. Improved, uninjured, placed between. In a cloud, within an entanglement, between the leaves, within the margin, turned over; not to be seen, not seen before, not according to any rule, closed when touched. Standing singly, growing young again, bright-green, not being rough. Lascivious, dormant, healing, full of freckles. Lichen-like, border or hem, margined, surrounded by a distinct line.

Stone-loving, long lived, wood-loving, sad, mournful, strong. Melancholic, with black bristles, transformed, very small.

Less, wonderful, resembling a common moss, very soft, fretful. Growing, in the act of being formed. Unavoidable, unobserved, sylvan.

A little knot, without markings, noteworthy, new. Pertaining to night, covered, suppressed, hidden, imperfectly developed, protected. Overshadowed, obscure. Mountain-loving, bird-like, having ears. Cloth-like, paper-like, butterfly. Proud, transparent, strange, foreign, suspended. The floral envelope, hurtful, injurious, everlasting.

Rocky, growing on rocks, rock-loving.
Low, common, folded.

Lanky, peculiar, precious, notable, of the Primula tribe.

Strange, wonderful, partial, most beautiful, pertaining to a branch. Rare, reviving, distant, hidden, rural, thriving.

Kept apart, manifesting irritability. Rustling, growing wild.

Only one in the place. Not adherent. Singular, peculiar, extra beautiful.

Winding, somewhat notched, partly curled, slightly curved, having some irregularity, unreal, secret, near the edge.

Nearly naked, somewhat blunt, slightly hairy, somewhat prickly, almost alone, partly covered. Supported or propped. Loathsome, tender.